

Compression use and Peripheral Arterial Disease

Compression therapy is highly effective in the treatment as well as in the prevention of leg edema. However its use in patients with peripheral arterial disease (PAD) is debated. The effect of compression on blood flow in normal subjects and patients with PAD and the benefit/risk of compression applied in such patients will be discussed.